orders have been received from England for the detachment of Royal Artillery now stationed in Sydney, to held itself in readiness to embark from this colony for Penang.

Mr. George Coppin's company of actors and actresses, from the Haymarket Thestre, Melbourne, arrived by the steamer City of Melbourne last Wednesday afternoon. They will appear on Monday night next in the Prince of Wales Opera House.

As the shipwrecked crew of the Cyclone were coming along the beach from Port Stephena, they came upon the headless body of a man partly buried in the sand and greatly decomposed. It is supposed to be the body of the fisherman named Sim, who left Hannah Bay some time back and has not since been heard of, but whose boat was found on the beach.

The Rev. W. Kelynack, last Wednesday evening, at the School of Arts, North Shore, delivered a lecture on the poetry of Cowper.

The annual meeting of the German Evangelical Church was held on the 16th instant, in the presence of their pastor, A. L. Heyde, and a number of the members of the congregation. The chair was taken by Mr. B. Frerichs, who opened the meeting with a few prefatory remarks on the satisfactory state of their undertaking generally.

The following horses, viz., Firework, Echo, and Dane, who are to run at the forthcoming meetings, arrived from Melbourne, last Wednesday afternoon at 5 o'clock, in the steamer City of Melbourne. All three appear to be in good condition, and were landed without secident.

Last Wednesday night the Volunteers of all arms were called out to take part in a sham fight, which passed off most successfully. The party engaged in the affair consisted of the six companies of the Sydney Battelion, the South Sydney, St. Leonards, and Paddington Riffes, the Naval Brigade, and the six batteries of Volunteer Artillery.

The half-yearly meeting of the Sydney Insurance Company was held on Wednesday last.

Amonget the recent deaths we have to make special record of the following cases:—A man named Robert Rogers, a gunner in the Royal Artillery, was Piembong. He had opened the veins of his arm with a rasor, and so committed suicide. It was not possible to save the unfortunate man.—About three weeks since an infant, named J. W. Smith, died at Marrickville from natural causes.—Mr. H. Brasnall, late teacher of the public school at Meadow Flat, was, last Thursday week, discovered dead in his bed. Death, it is believed, ensued from disease of the heart.—A child, named William Geary, was recently found drowned in a water tank at Morpeth.

A woman was found dead last Saturday, in a tent at Emu Creek, with two infant children in her arms, twins. An inquest was held; a verdict was returned, of "died from exposure and exhaustion after child-birth." Her husband had gone to the Barrier Ranges.

A meeting was held on Thursday aftermoon, at the Exchange, for the purpose of forming a company to develope the resources of New Guinea. About sixty gentlemen were present, Mr. Le. Gould in the chair. Captain Champion, Captain Cottier, and other gentlemen addressed the meeting. It was resolved that a trading company should be established.

On Saturday last twenty hours heavy rain had fallen at Fort Bourke, which extended a considerable distance along the Darling. The river had risen four feet from local rains, and a higher rise was anticipated, as the creek and other tributaries were running.

Great improvements have been recently effected at the Randwick Racecourse.

Last Thursday night, at about 11 o'clock, a dissertious fire broke out on the premises in the rear of the building known as Reiby Cottage, situated in the right of way adjoining the establishment of Mr. John Sands, nearly opposite the Commercial Bank, and occupied by Messars. Simmons Brothers as a general atore. The fire was got under after great exertions, but not until Reiby Cottage, and the extensive premises occupied by Mr. John Sands as a machinercom and printing office, were reduced to a heap of ruins. The loss occasioned by this configgration will probably not be far short of £20,000.

LABOUR MARKET.

W. BROWN.—The demand for labour of most descriptions has improved, especially for the country districts. Orders are received chiefly for married and single farm and dairy serrands, bushmen, and ordinary labourers; the supply of these classes is not greatly in excess of present wants. The inquiry for mechanics is limited. Gardeners, storcheepers, waiters, pertero, and persons requiring light situations, are sufficiently numerous for the execution of current orders. The supply of female servants is tolerably good, many of the applicants being desired as follows, viz.:—Compositors (Spekery Morning Heraid), 1st 2d per 1000. With board and lodging, or hut room and rations, per anhum—Carpenters and blacksmiths, £50 to £0; rough earpenters, £35 to £46; married farm and domestic servants, £45 to £50; grouns, coachiners, and gardeners, £35 to £46; farm stores. £50; grooms, cockmann, and gardeners, £50 to £40; farm and garden labourers.

SATURDAY, APRIL 20, 1867.

ANOTHER fire has revived the discontent justified by our long experience of the deficiency of the water-supply. We are told that the losses of Thursday night will hardly be covered by £20,000. A sum equal to this was sacrificed a few weeks back within fifty yards of this same spot, and there the engines could not for a considerable time obtain water. How many instances of similar devastation aggravated by the same cause may have occurred we have no distinct record; but the feeling produced by the consciousness that there is no adequate preparation for such visitation is not only one of anxiety, but something like indig-nation. The public have a right to inquire and to know how it happens that the supply is so long before it is available. We are told that the steam fre-engines were prepared for action a quarter of an hour before water could be got!

and that in the centre of the city. They had to be brought from their depots, the brigade to be aroused and in attendance. It must then have occupied some time to prepare for opera-tion. Then, when all was ready, the water without which all was useless, was not at hand Whose fault is it that this deficiency occurs again and again? By what rule are those in charge of the water disabled from allowing its charge of the water disabled from allowing its influx? By whose neglect was it so long before it was supplied?

In this case, the fire took place behind a close street, full of valuable property and premises of considerable strength. It is stated by the report that the fire, having passed from the tries of the control o the place where it was first discovered, caught a frail building near, and from this leapt to the higher warehouses, in which were deposited large quantities of valuable property, to which, of course, water or fire would be almost equally destructive. The premises where the fire broke out are of considerable age. They belonged to a bygone period. Had it been practicable to apply water at once to these premises the whole loss would have been limited to them. But a quarter of an hour is sufficient in some cases to determine whether alone sacrificed.

Everything may be said of those who had the management of the engines, both for their promptitude in preparing, and the control and skill with which they directed the powerful weapons of this noble war. No praise is too great for men who are prepared to act on all occasions with precision and perseverance, and who, uniting knowledge with courage, are enabled to save not only property but in many instances life itself.

The fires which have taken place in this city, as well as in other parts of the colonies, are severe deductions from the profits on insurance companies. When we, however, look into the causes of fires and the places where they mainly occur, it will be seen they are generally traceable to some miserable apology for a building. Not only a whole neighbourhood is subjected to this risk for the purpose of extending for a few years the use of places that ought to be devoted to the hammer in companies. When we, however, look into the order that they may escape the flames. All owners of property are interested in the disappearance of buildings that are no longer suited to a crowded neighbourhood, and which are in some instances indeed a strong suggestion and temptation to dishonest persons. It would be the interest of the insurance companies to investigate every part of the city where large property is lodged, and see how far it may be possible by remonstrance, or the operation of law, to secure the amoval of whatever may hazard the general safety. When we consider that probably one hundred thousand with much danger, and that it would be far better to close the main pipes a part of the day, and to leave a full supply after dark. One thing is certain, a better provision must be secured by some means or other. Any delay in providing against such a contingency as fire would be likely to be visited with great calamity. In this instance the night was remarkably calm. The flames rose up almost without wavering. Consequently, the diffusion of the fire was not assisted by the wind. On many occasions this alone might have rendered the devastation immensely greater.

We have then had two warnings in this fire at Reiby Cottage and its surroundings, and that which occurred not long ago at the corner of King-street; these conflagrations involving a King street; these conflagrations involving a loss of trade not less than £40,000. "Beware of the third time," is sometimes the saying of superstition, but in this case it is the exclamation of prudence itself. We have the exclamation of prudence itself. We have escaped without loss of life, and with, com paratively, small sacrifice; but if the provision be not more ample of what is so essential and successful, we may have a story to tell such as we have read of California on several occasions; or such as occurred more recently at Quebe

THE foot of the Anglo-Saxon is upon the waste places of the world. From the narrow limits of the British Isles ray out the progressive influences of civilisation. The spirit of enterprise is strikingly characteristic of all nations moulded in the self-renunciatory matrix of the Christian belief, but of none so much as our own. It is a had interpretable which is a belief when the ship is a self-renunciatory matrix of the christian belief, but of none so much as our own. It is a bad sign when this chivalric energy has died out, and been obliterated by the spirit-less indifferenism of luxury. We view with pity and scorn the state of that people where the and storn the state of that people where the assassin or the murderer can perpetrate his wickedness in the view of a city population without fear of interruption. The same feelings swell within us when we see a powerful State so absorbed in the extension of its commerce as ansorbed in the extension of its commerce as to be oblivious to the cry of some minor State writhing in the oppressive grasp of a strong-handed rival. There are not wanting in our own days people who regard with approbation the selfishness of Athenian republics whose views were bounded by the line of domestic politics: the acts of sordidness narrated of the Dutch; the peace-at-any-price policy which England stooped to apply to the case of Denmark; or, looking at the apparently barren results of the expeditions sent to discover the North-West Passage, characterise them as reck-North-West Passage, characterise them as reck-less and spendthrift. There are, happily, few in these colonies who would sympathise with such views. Whatever may have been the conse-quences to individual pioneers, we cannot but regard with a glow of pride what has been accomplished in the two great theatres of modern exploration. Africa and Australia modern exploration—Africa and Australia— y the sons of Britain; nor can we contemplate with any sentiments but those of shame a di aversion the age when this noble chivalry shall have ceased to nerve men to achievements which render history so precious an heirloom to posterity, and when trade, which should be regarded as a handmaid to the "great confederation of the world," becomes the one engrossing

The heroic virtues of the missionary explorer of Africa have been so long the theme of conversation among all classes of he people, that the event is not only regarded as a public loss, but every one feels himself to have lost a personal friend.

There is some slight colour for the supposition that the news of LIVINGSTONE'S death brought to Zanzibar by his follower Moosa was only fabricated by that servant to account for his desertion; but those best acquainted with the circumstances regard it as a false hope

Since the possession of the Cape of Good Hope by England, equatorial Africa has ceased to be a blank in our maps. It is a gratifying fact that the knowledge we now possess of its physical condition, its people, and its productions, is mainly due to the self-sacrificing spirit tions, is mainly due to the self-sacrificing spirit of Englishmen—to men and women who, carrying their lives in their hands, went forth desiring to discover the resources of the country, and to check, if possible, the horrors of the slave trade, by opening up trade of another kind. No country presents so brilliant and of discovers at Africa. Since 1760 m. a roll of discoverers as Africa. Since 1760 we note the names of James Bruce, of Ledyard, of Lucas and Houghton, of Mungo Park, of Captains Tucket and Clafferton, of Majors Denham and Peddie, of Mesers. Lyon and Ritchie, of Horneman and Lander, of Richaedson, Barth, and Overweg, of Captains Burton, Grant, Speke, of Samuel and Lady Baker, and of those admirable missionaries Khape, Isenerg

In all his various journeys Dr. LIVINGSTONE had travelled over no less than 11,000 miles of African territory, and had come back to England the pioneer of sound and useful knowledge. For, by his astronomical observations he had For, by his astronomical observations he had determined the sites of numerous places, hills, rivers, and lakes, nearly all of which had been hitherto unknown, while he had seized upon every opportunity of describing the physical features, climatology, and geological structure of the countries which he had explored, and the countries which he had explored, and had pointed out many new sources of com-merce as yet unknown to the scope of the enterprise of the British merchant."

prise of the British merchant."

It will be within the memory of most readers that Dr. LIVINGSTONE returned to Africa as the leader of a recond expedition, which, from the support of the British Government, and public opinion, obtained the prestige of a national enterprise. Owing to the imperfection of the little steam launch in which he and his party were to explore the Zambesi and its tributaries with a view of ascertaining their carefulling. were to explore the Zambesi and its tributaries with a view of accertaining their capabilities for commerce, and to other obsta in results did not equal the expectations constrained. The expedition, however, was successful in improving our geographical and hydrographical knowledge of the south-eastern part of Africa, and affording a far more complete knowledge of the native tribes, languages, habits, state of civilisation and religion, than was possible in the former. The principal result of this second expedition was, perhaps, the discovery of the rich and densely peopled valley of the Shire, with its fine river, navigable inland to a distance of 200 miles. "We have opened," says Dr. LIVINGSTONE, in his despatch to the Foreign Office, "a cotton and sugar district of great and unknown extent, and which really seems to afford reasonable prospect of great commercial bareful to the content of the commercial bareful to the commercial bareful to a sugar district of great commercia to afford reasonable prospect of great commer-cial benefit to our own country; it presents facicial benefit to our own country; it presents facilities for commanding a large section of the slave market on the coast, and offers a fair hope of its suppression by lawful commerce." This expedition was withdrawn in 1862, but the withdrawal was accompanied by the denouncement, on the part of its chief, of the conduct of the Portugese Government, in countenancing the slave trade. Where not only tribe is arrayed sominat tribe for the canture of slaves, but against tribe for the capture of slaves, but family against family, and where the tribes highest in intelligence are found morally the most degraded—the men freely selling their own wives and grown up daughters, for three or four yards of calico-nothing can be expected but the continuance of the most debasing forms of barbarism.

An early suggestion of Dr. Livingstone's led to the projection of the third, and we fear last, enterprise? He conceived that the sources of the Zambesi and the Nile were not far apart, and that the parting of their watersheds would be found to lie somewhere between the latitudes 6° and 12° south. His instructions were to reach the Tanganyika, and to direct his particular attention to its effluent; and as the distance between the two lakes, Tanganyika and Albert Nyanza, cannot be considerable, it is to be hoped that he will be able to test the correctness of the information which he formerly received, as well as that given to Captains Bus-TON and SPEKE. If the Lake Tanganyika should prove to be connected with the Albert Nyanza, and the Albert Nyanza by its westerly or other affluent with the Nile, to Dr. LIVING-STONE may yet be accorded the honour of being the real discoverer of the source of that mighty river which has eluded the search of mankind

It is pleasant to refer to the objects and hop of this great explorer, as modestly stated by him in a preface to his last work, penned the day before he again left his natives shores. He day before he again left his natives shores. He characterises his labours as an attempt to open up a new field north of the Bechuana country to the sympathy of Christendom, and then adds: "The prospects there discovered are fairer than I anticipated, and the capabilities of the new region lead me to hope that, by the production of the raw materials of our manufactures, African and English interests will become more closely linked than heretofore, that both countries will be eventually benefited, and that the cause of be eventually benefited, and that the cause of freedom throughout the world will be in some measure promoted." Here we have the brief talism; but a Scripture which this large-hearted

COUNTRIPATT SHILLINGS.—The dealers in counterfeit coin appear to have lately introdued a rather clever trick, against which it may be well to offer a word of warning. It seems that certain old copper coins, or initations of them, are ground in such a namer that the stamp shows only on one side, and that out faintly. The other is quite smooth, and when the edge is properly milled and the whole electroplated, these neat little productions are exceedingly like well-son shillings, as which they are easily passed off.—City Press.

The control of the co

colony is indeed overstocked, it is true economy to dispense with further supplies. But what they evidentity consider of still greater importance is "Protection to native industry," as the phrase once ren among correlves. They went over to Australia to menufacture the articles produced in their several trades, and they find that their fellow-workmen whom they left behind on still undercell them in their several trades, and they find that their fellow-workmen whom they left behind on still undercell them in their several trades, and that if the carpenter or joiner could get a little more work by having his own way in this matter, he would at the same time have to pay twice as nuch as before for his furnitive and his utensils, his clothes and his shoes. That is the point which is always overlooked in such arguments. The had old Corn Laws, dead and gone as they are, come in still for a great deal of vituperation; but a fermer, after all, has as much right to be a Protectionist as anybody else, and Trade Unions could not expect to have their bread cheap if they made all their own products artificially dear. Free Trade covers all callings and all labour. It would puzzle eny Trade Unions, whether here or in Australia, to combine high wages with cheep living for all.

We suppose, notwithstanding the obvious purpose of this document, that we may accept its statistics as substantially true, and in that case our working clares at home may well ask themselves whether they have not more reason to be content than they appear to believe. While wages have been failing or employment declining in Australia both the value and the demand for labour have been steadily improving at home. There is depression at this moment—the result of ill-considered suterprise or extravagant speculation; but for the last six or seven years—the period quoted as so unfortunate in the colony—the working clares in this country have seen their receipts increasing or their hours of labour shortened. Their advartages in this respect have rise in part fro they been only "City Arabs" it would easily be accounted for, but the crowd was composed of, I believe, persons of every rask from the wealthy merchent downwards. The commands of the officer could only be heard—I may say—by accident, and the consequence is obvious—our morements were not executed with anythine like the precision; they weuld have been with "a fiv field and no favour." The companies throw not in attendib "e orde; suffered specially from the notwace, while if when obeying our orders, we unlackily run agrinat say of our worthy fallow citizens, we were nythine but compliment I on our skill, though they were decidedly the aggre wors, insumable at they were in our way. I am not aware with whom the fault rule, but I won'd respectfully saggre it it he "I were that he," that when we next try saything of the sort, some more efficient me me be taken of keeping our ground clear, for the comfort of all patter concerned.

M. L. V. German recents the sale this real-

Mr. J. V. Gorman reports the sale, this week. Mr. J. V. Gorman reports the sale, this week, by public auction, of the following properties:

—Greengrocer's shop, No. 420, Bourke-street, for £255, to Mr. Charles Sainty; grocer's shop, Church-street, Parramatta, now let to Mr. Raibe, fer £315, to Mr. John Donnelly; four cottages in Henry and Woodriffe streets, town of Penrith, for £222, to Mr. Archibald Thompson. Negotiations are pending, with every likelihood of a favourable result, for the sale of the other properties offered on the 16th instant, viz., Coulter's store, High-street, Penrith, and the two farms at The Oaks, Camden, which were withdrawn at auction, at prices slightly were withdrawn at auction, at prices slightly below vendor's reserves.

Messrs. Richardson and Wrench report having sold land with dwelling erected thereon, Campbell-street, Haymarket, for £600; Wardie, the residence and grounds of the late Mr. John Dunsmure, Homebush, for £780;

Mr. John Dunsmure, Homebush, for £780; 81 acres back land, Elswick Estate, Petersham, £40 per acre; allotment land Darling-street, Balmain, 50s. per foot.

Want of stock to sell, is reported by the stock and share brokers to be the cause of the inactivity which has characterised the market activity which has characterised the market during the past week; most of the stocks which are considered eligible investments would find buyers at quotations, but holders are indisposed to sell. Bank stocks are very firm. New South Wales continue to advance, sales show an improvement of 5s. Commercials are scarce at last week's prices. Citys find buyers at 10½. Australasian Steam are slightly lower, sales at 10½. A parcel of Clarence and Richmonds have been done at a considerable advance.

104. A parcel of Clarence and Richmonds have been done at a considerable advance. Debentures have been dealt in to a moderate extent. New South Wales Terminables, due in 1893, were placed at 90 and interest, and A. S. N. Co.'s at 98. City of Sydneys show a slight decline. New Zealand Government tens sage declared the same of the Newcastle Gas and Coke Co. are moving off steadily at par.

The following table will show the closing quotations of the stock and share market, and the rates at which business has been done during the week :-

The rapidity with which the whole of the allotments already leased have been built upon clearly shows the great value of property in this locality, and also that the system of 59 years leases, and the great advantages arising therefrom are being better understood and asted upon. The tenure is almost equal to a freshold, while it enables the purchaser, at a small annual rent, to secure the land, and expend his easifial uron inprovements, which will at once yield him A FROFATABLE RETURN FOR HIS MONEY.
